

I am writing to comment on the potential loosening of media ownership rules, which would unfourtunately enable only a few major companys to rule our public airwaves. Any step in constricting the diversity of tv or media will severely hinder the way the minds of many Americans operate. I am against this rule change and demand a public debate over this issue. If most Americans knew that the information they recieved was issued by profit-hungry corporations that had no interest in serving the public anything but bullshit, anything that would earn them a buck, if they knew that our democracy was at stake of losing its meaning, if the public knew anything at all (which they don't, so i guess the controlled media is doing its job) they would be opposed to allowing corporations showing them what to care about and running their lives. Please, think of the horrible consequences that are to come of this major change of broadcast ownership rules and please include the public in the process of choosing how OUR media is run.
